

Dear Psychology Today,

The scientific data are finally catching up with literary, philosophical, historical and cross cultural common sense observations: compulsive sexual behaviors, including pornography addiction, commonly involve day by day rewiring of the brain, and/or early sexual trauma.

Since modernity is ruled to a great extent by “data” and “science” it is vital to formally support research and researchers engaged in these investigations.

Sincerely,

A concerned PhD